Chapter-1: Introduction

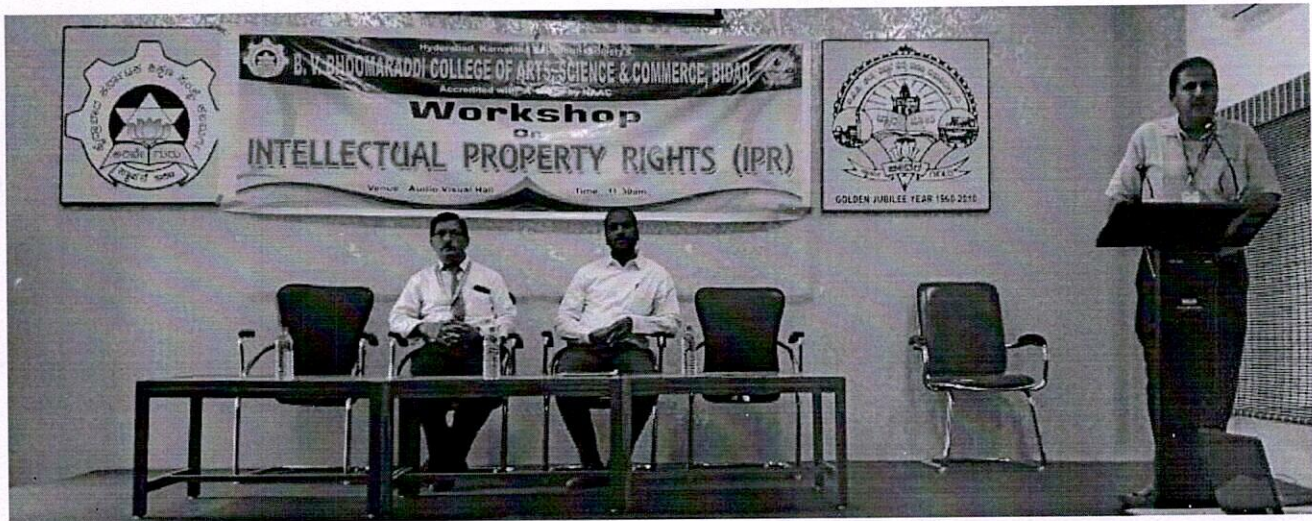

- ❖ Intellectual property, as a concept, was originally designed to cover ownership of literary and artistic works, inventions (patents) and trademarks.
- ❖ What is protected in intellectual property is the form of the work, the invention, the relationship between a symbol and a business.
- ❖ Intellectual property is basically the creation of human mind (intellect).
- ❖ It is an intangible property having exclusive rights afforded by statutes, attended with limitations and exceptions.
- ❖ IPR provide certain exclusive rights to the inventors or creators of that property, in order to enable them to reap commercial benefits from their creative efforts .
- ❖ Patent is one type of the intellectual property among seven intellectual property rights granted for new and useful inventions including inventions pertaining to food.

Introduction (Cont...)

- ❖ Patents and food are two divergent concepts evolved and developed themselves in different times.
- ❖ The concept of food is as old as living being creatures including human being.
- ❖ When man was found the idea of fire then it was the turning point in food system of the human being.
- ❖ Human being started to eat burned flesh on fire. Learnt baking, frying and much more techniques of cooking the food. Now it is the time of pizza, burger, roasted and toasted items.
- ❖ Another milestone in food system is the evolution of agriculture by which human being started to grow and cultivate different varieties of food grains.
- ❖ Now food industry becoming fast growing industry due to advent of industrial revolution.
- ❖ Preparation of food and techniques involved in preparation of food of different taste and flavor led towards claiming of monopoly rights for the innovations and inventions on food processes and products led grant of patents.
- ❖ India have not been used to grant product patents on food items.
- ❖ The TRIPs Agreement of GATT/WTO obligated to grant product patents for food items which definitely affect the prime goal of achieving food security to the masses.
